

Dear Sirs,

I am opposing any federal proposal that will diminish Indiana no call privacy law. I feel the FCC as a regulatory body should not have authority to lessen the effectiveness of our state law!

The Indiana law has greatly improved our time at home by our not being interrupted with unwanted solitations by telephone.

This law has reduced the number of unwanted calls from several each night to almost zero. Maybe one or two a month on average.

I don't believe a any business or person should be able to call my home to try to sell me something without my prior approval. If I were to respond to a mailing and give them my phone number would be the only way they should be able to call my home and try to solict business or a donation. My phone book listing is such that only my friends and familiy find my number so it is easy to understand that do value my privacy! Do not help anyone to invade it please!
